

Word Attack

Word Attack is what we use to decode unknown words. When the students see a word they don't know they are suppose to check for prefixes and suffixes. Students can typically pronounce these easily. Then they look in the middle of the word for either a root word or small words that they recognize. This strategy helps the students tear the word apart into smaller sections.